Subjects Discussions. The second day's business session of the National Photographic Association of the United States began a. 10 o'clock this morning in the basement of the Horticultural Hall, the President, Mr. Bogardus, in the chair. Previous to the transaction of business the roll was called, the members rising as they answered. This occupied considerable time, the roll containing the names of 638 members, of whom 150 were present at the morning session.

A communication from Mr. Edwin Anthony, of New York, was read, expressing regret for compelled absence on account of the assemblage of the photographers at the unveiling of the Morse statue in New York.

The president stated that Prof. Morse was the first man who took a phetographic picture on the American continent. The camera which he then used is still in existence, and it was intended to have it on exhibition at this time, but this intention could not be carried out.

A motion was made that a committee of three be appointed to invite the members of the Homeeopathic Convention now meeting in the city, to visit the hall and examine the picture exhibition. This was agreed to. Messrs, Lomis, Fitler, and Elliot were appointed the committee. On motion it was agreed that this convention give three hearty cheers next Saturday morning, at the hour of the unveiling of the Morse monu ment in New York, and that Professor be advised by telegraph of the fact at the time. On motion the president was appointed a committee to obtain, if possible, a picture of Professor Morse and his first camera, for the use of the members of the association.

The report of the Committee on the Progres of Photography was read by the Secretary. The report states that during the year great advances. had been made in portrait photography, in backgrounds, and lights. The greatly increased use of the magic fantern has produced a great demand for good glass positives, which have consequently increased much in excellence. The Woodbury and Albert processes are now in practical operation. The negatives sent for solar enlargement have, as a rule, been much improved. Landscape photography does not as yet stand on an equal footing with the other branches of the art, as in Europe. The year, however, witnesses a great advance in this department.

The feading of the foreign correspondence connected with the report on the progress of photography was dispensed with, and that portion of the report was ordered to be printed in the American Photographer.

The report was received and adopted. Notice was given of a proposed alteration of the constitution allowing a phonographic re-porter to become one of the officers of the association. This was, under the rules, laid over for future action.

On motion, the Secretary was made a member of the Executive Committee. Several communications relating to private business were read and acted upon.

Messrs. J. D. Masters, J. R. Woodburn, and J. P. Suck, members of the association from St. John, New Brunswick, were introduced and re-beived with applause.

Mr. J. H. Kent, of Rochester, N. Y., was introduced, who read a paper on "Correct Principles of the Photographic Trade." He held that the best work is always the best paid, and the aim should be to charge nothing less than can be afforded, and for this the photographer should always do his best, not resting upon the satisfaction of the customer only, but upon the satisfaction of the artist also. The best likeness is not always the best picture, and this fact. should be borne in mind if success is desired.

Mr. Kent gave a lengthy description of his particular method of operating, and of his pe-culiarly constructed sky light and operating

The reading of this paper led to considerable discussion, which was participated in by numerous members. The thanks of the association were tendered to Mr. Kent for his able paper by a unanimous rising vote. Mr. A. S. Southworth, of Boston, was then given the floor to explain his side of the question at issue in a patent case in which he had been engaged for some time. Mr. Southworth said that his case had been decided against him at Albany, N. Y. The case then went to the Supreme Court of the United States last winter, when the decision of four judges was favorable and that of an equal number unfavorable. This leaves the case in the exact position in which it was before anything was done. All that is asked is that the members of the association will reserve their judgment until the case is finally decided in Washington. A motion was made that in future all persona difficulties between members of the association be excluded from its deliberations. Agreed to On motion, the lady members of the associa-tion were requested in future to occupy the front seats at the meetings, Mr. Henry B. Anthony, of New York, rose to a personal explanation in relation to the use of his name in connection with the Southworth A committee of one member from each State represented, to select the next place of meeting, was appointed and ordered to report to-morrow (Friday) afternoon. This motion was afterwards reconsidered, and the method of appointing the committee was discussed. Mr. Elrod, of St. Louis, asked as a particular yor that the association meet next time at St.

Louis, because there the best hotels and the best halls could be had, and the members could be shown the fastest horses and the prettiest

Miss Jennie Fleming, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, a photographer, and a member of the associa-tion, rose and said that she begged leave to differ. She thought that her friends in Chicago could show as pretty women and as fast horses. A motion was made that the President appoint a committee of thirteen, on which a divi-sion was called. The motion was carried by vote of 102 to 54. The committee on the proposed photograph of the members of the association reported that the picture would be taken to-morrow morning at half-past eight o'clock, sharp, on the steps of Horticultural Hall or of the Academy of Music. Adjourned until 3 P. M.

'Hernia" by Dr. Bebee. Dr. Bebee, in the course of his remarks, stated that he had never administered opium after severe surgical operations. He had found the use of arnica and caffeia uniformly better. Dr. T. F. Allen, of New York then read his essay on a case of polypus conjunctiva, which occurred in the Opthalmic Hospital in New York. There are only a few such cases on re-cord. The polypus alluded to was in the eye of a female patient aged twenty-five years.

The operation proved successful, and the patient is in a fair way of recovery. Dr. Allen recounted his experience with lycopodium and calcaria in such affections, and testified to their great efficiency. Dr. C. T. Siebold, of New York, presented a paper on the "Diseases of the Lachrymal Duct and other Associated Organs. Dr. W. T. This will temporarily stop the blood until other surgical aid arrives The speaker also exhibited a very ingenious in-

MAYOR'S VETO.

His Objections to the Fairmount Bridge Contract Bill. This afternoon the Mayor sent into Councils this veto message:-Gentlemen:—I regret, from my great desire to see a new bridge constructed over the river Schuylkill at Fairmount at the earliest possible moment, that I at Fairmount at the earliest possible moment, that I find myself obliged to return the resolution entitled "Resolution relative to the proposals for erecting Fairmount Bridge," without my approval.

The language of the resolution seems to be vague and ambiguous. Although it is restricted to directing the City Solicitor to prepare contracts with parties for the construction of the several portions of the new bridge at the locality mentioned, and to report the same, with the names of sureties offered, to the Chambers, it obviously promises that if the contracts are in proper form and the sureties satisfactory, Councils will have such contracts executed and the city bound for the amount of expenditure involved.

Involved.
On examination of the minutes and proceedings On examination of the minutes and proceedings of Councils, I cannot find that any sufficient appropriation has been made to meet the outlay required under such contracts. The act of Assembly of April 21, 1855, expressly provides "that no debt or contract hereafter incurred or made shall be binding upon the city of Philadelphia unless authorized by law or ordinance, and an appropriation sufficient to pay the same be previously made by Councils." And the Supreme Court, in the case of Bladen against the city of Philadelphia, which is to be found in the tenth volume of P. F. Smith's Reports, page 444, has tenth volume of P. F Smith's Reports, page 464, has recognized the force of this act, and it there decided recognized the force of this act, and it there decided that a contract made in advance of an appropriation is not binding on the city of Philadelphia, the distinguished judge who delivered the opinion of the Ceurt in that case (having reference to this act of 1855) saying:—"Had the statute enacted expressly that without such appropriation the contract would be void and no debt incurred, it could not, as far as the liability of the city is concerned, have been more mandatory or imperative than it is."

A contract now made under the provisions of the resolution which I now return would, therefore, be invalid, and so plainly did this objection present itself to my mind on my first reading of your joint resolution that I have forborne any investigation of the facts in connection with the matter.

Very respectfully, DANIEL M. Fox, Very respectfully,

Mayor of Philadelphia. The resolution in question authorizes the City Solicitor to prepare contracts with J. W. Murphy for the main and Thirty-second street bridge superstructure and the iron work of approaches; with J. J. Kennedy for the graduation, masonry, curbing, and paving, and with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the erection of all work "westward of retaining wall beyond Thirtieth street, as per proposals for erecting a bridge over the river Schuylkill at Fairmount."

BANK ROBBERS.

How a Plan was Laid to Capture Them How it did not Work.

Last evening Superintendent Fracker, of the North Pennsylvania Railroad, sent word to Lieutenant Pritchard, of the Eleventh district, that six burglars had gone up the road that afternoon, and he had information leading to the belief that they intended to "crack" a bank. As there were no more out-trains that evening, the Lieutenant sent officers to watch the down trains that arrived, in the hope that the depredators might be ensuared upon their return. trains came in, but brought no vestige of the burglars. The Lieutenant, at 2 o'clock this morning, despatched Sergeant Manning and Officers Lukens and Ryble up the road, and they laid off a few moments to inspect the downtrain then at Fort Washington, but found no robbers. They continued their journey up to Lansdale, and learned that the robbers had made an attempt upon the Lausdale Bank, but that the citizens, informed by a message from the Superintendent, had surrounded the institution upon which the depredators were so industriously working, with the intention of cutting off escape and bagging the whole. Unfortunately for strategic fellows, their zeal was too much for them, and one of them could not restrain firing off a gun. The shot was disastrous in its effects it alarmed the game, and what is worse, as the injured man says, some portions lodged in the body of one of their own party. A scene of confusion ensued, and there were shouts of 'Don't shoot! Don't shoot! You will hit us! While this interesting drama was in progress the wary robbers had ingeniously drawn off. They made their way to a farmer's stable, stole a team, rode over to a neighboring station on the New York Railroad, and got away on the

DOMESTIC ENTANGLEMENTS.

How an Old Man Whipped his Son and Defied the Police. James Knox resides at Tulip and Dauphin streets. Last night his son Charles, being drunk, went for the "old man," and a lively tussle ensued. Another occupant of the house called upon Officer Deams to quell the disturbance, but he declined, upon the ground that he could not invade the dwelling without a war-rant. He suggested, however, that if the other would get the young man out of the house he would take him in custody, whereupon that person entered the room where the battle was hotly raging and pushed the belligerent Charles into the street, where the officer quickly nabbed him. Charles objected to this treatment, and went for the officer in a style that was wonderful to see, considering that whisky had the best of him. Having, as he thought, settled his official opponent, he retreated into the dwelling. followed by the zealous Deams, who had no sooner closed the door upon his back than the "old man," who could hammer his son with unction, while he would allow no one else to touch him, commenced an assault that at once caused the officer to retreat, leaving the valiant father and son in triumphant possession of their own fortress to resume at will their little unpleasantness. In the evening Officer McNulty, of the Eleventh district, entered the house and found Charles in bed and attempted to arrest him, when the "old man," like "Squire West-"fetched him a flick" across the eyes that put them in the shade. Reinforced, however, the two belligerents were arrested, and held to answer by Alderman Heins.

How One of the "Reading Hose" Gang was Served.

Yesterday afternoon Officer McDevitt, of the Ninth district, arrested a fellow named Camill, who belongs to the "Reading Hose" gang, at Broad and Callowhill streets, his authority being a warrant charging Camill with an assault on a brother officer. After they had proceeded a short distance the prisoner jumped away from his custodian and ran down Broad street, closely followed by McDevitt. The other members of the gang, upon witnessing the pursuit, sent up a shout, "Let's lick the —," and commenced a terrific assault with paving-stones upon the officer, who was compelled to draw his revolver and fire into the gang. He was then beaten down with stones by his murderous assailants, having at least one satisfaction, in seeing a no-torious leader of the gang hobble away with a pistol-ball in him. A squad of officers appearing upon the scene dispersed the ricters, and carried their wounded brother to a neighboring drug store, where he was covered with adhesive plasters. Last night, Officer Costigan, of the same force, arrested a member of this gang on an open lot at Broad and Vine streets, who gave his name as Michael Martin, but was recognized as Cornelius Gegan. When taken before Alder-man Pancoast he walked with difficulty, and endeavored to allay the officer's suspicions by saying that he had a sore foot, when, on examination, it was found that a pistol-bullet had passed through his thigh, and he was then discovered to be the leader of the gang who was shot by Officer McDevitt. Alderman Pancoast held him in $1000 ball to answer.

FOUND DEAD IN A HOTEL

More of the Woodhull-Claffin Case. A man about 45 years old, and rather poorly dressed, called at French's Hotel late on Tuesday night and asked for a room. Nothing was seen or heard of him after entering his room until yesterday, when one of the chambermaids having tried the door several times, and finding it locked, finally procured a step-ladder, climbed up, looked through the transom, and saw the occupant lying on the floor, in his night clothing, dead. He had attempted, apparently, to rise from his bed, and, being taken suddenly ill, had fallen and struck his head against the door, nearly forcing out one of the panels. superficial examination the physician thought that death resulted from natural causes. The body was sent to the Morgue, and a post-mortem examination will be made to-day.

The only property found belonging to the deceased was a small satchel, containing a wallet in which were $2.50, some medical prescrip-tions, and an envelope directed to "Dr. B. F. Sparr, No. 15 East Thirty-eighth street." There was a writ of ejectment directed against Woodhull & Claffin, directing them to vacate the premises No. 15 East Thirty-eighth street on or before a certain date. An unsigned letter, written in pencil, was directed to "Vickey, Col., and Tenney included," and referred to certain family matters, incidentally mentioning the ejectment writ, expressing the belief that the agent dare not put them out, and suggesting that something ought to be done for "poor old mother, pa, and Polly." There is no question but that the de-ceased is a brother-in-law of the notorious woman-brokers, and is the Dr. Sparr who was characterized as a drone by Miss Tennie during the recent legal proceeding, at Essex Market Police Court, and for whose support and that of his wife she and her sister, Mrs. Woodhull, some time ago refused longer to contribute .-

A SAD CASE,-Matilda Abel, a German girl. aged seventeen years, is now under the charge of Lieutenant Thomas. Her mother and stepfather live in Bracelet' court. She was living with a family at Third and Lombard streets, and on Thursday last suddenly disappeared. The family supposed she had run away, but were alarmed by a strange noise which occurred in the night time. On Tuesday morning last Matilda was found under a bed in the third story, where she had been lying since the preceeding Thursday, having been without food during the interim. She then confessed that she was subject to epileptic fits, and that she hid under the bed to conceal herself during their continuance. Lieutenant Thomas will send her to the hospital of the Almshouse.
